Young Love ... it's always complicated and never easy.

For the adults, high school love always comes too early. It is considered a threat that endangers the already difficult relationship with teens and entrails "adult risks". Therefore all too often, young love isn't just ridiculed, but bitterly opposed and combated in every possible way.

For the teens themselves, young love often signals the end of a carefree childhood. At the start, their hearts still take all important decision for them, but soon enough they have to start taking rational decisions: how serious are they going to take this new experience? Do they feel strong enough to oppose "the adult world"? How far will they go on the discovery path?

The Young Love experience also is a period of transition between dreams and reality. No teenage boy or girl of flesh and blood is capable of fulfilling all the teenage dreams and wishes of their new sweetheart.

At the same time, there is something endearing, fresh, compelling and innocent about young love that makes it irresistible, because stories about young love are about starting the path towards becoming yourself. They are open minded, unpretentious, have a strong sense of hope, and take us to a period in life where imagination still reigned and cynicism wasn't present yet.

Such also is the story of Sean and Katherine, which you are all warmly invited you to read and enjoy.

Hi, I'm Sean. I'm 16, well almost 17, and today is the first day of the new school year.

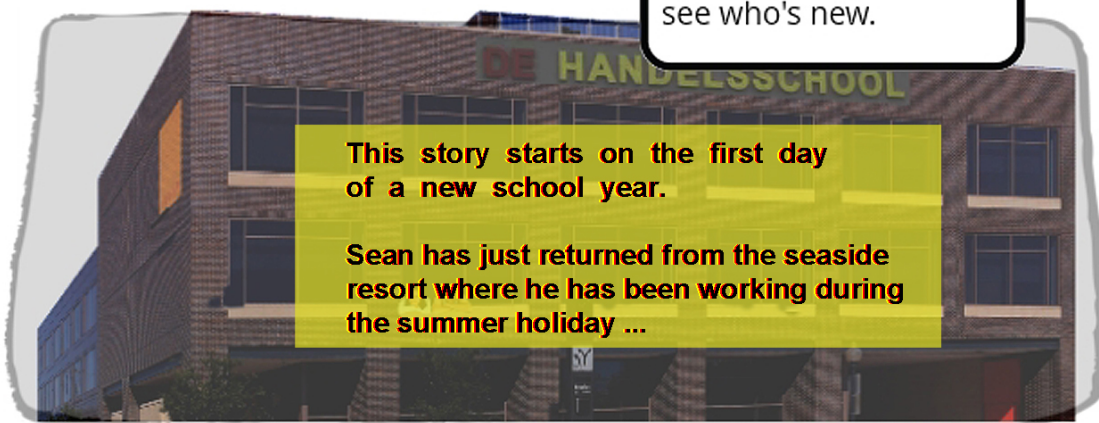

I'm not really a good student. I know I need a diploma in order to make something of my life. But following lessons at a business school was never my own idea. So I lack motivation, get bored easily in class, don't study and have a rather bad reputation.

Today, what is most important for me is to reconnect with my classmates and to find out if there are any new pupils in our class.

Unfortunately, I'm almost late, and there's no time to find out much before class starts.

Soon I find myself in class, looking around to see who's new.

This story starts on the first day of a new school year.

Sean has just returned from the seaside resort where he has been working during the summer holiday ...

During the morning break, Willy introduced me to his sister.

We started off on a bad foot: although Katherine was sitting in my class, I failed to recognize her.

Yet, she looked great and kept her cool. I fell in love head over heels.

Hey, guys, leave Katherine alone, will you. I want her!

Back In the classroom, I succeeded in getting her attention and already from that first day on, we became inseparable.

Soon, Katherine had installed herself at my side, even in the classroom! There was nothing boring about school anymore now!

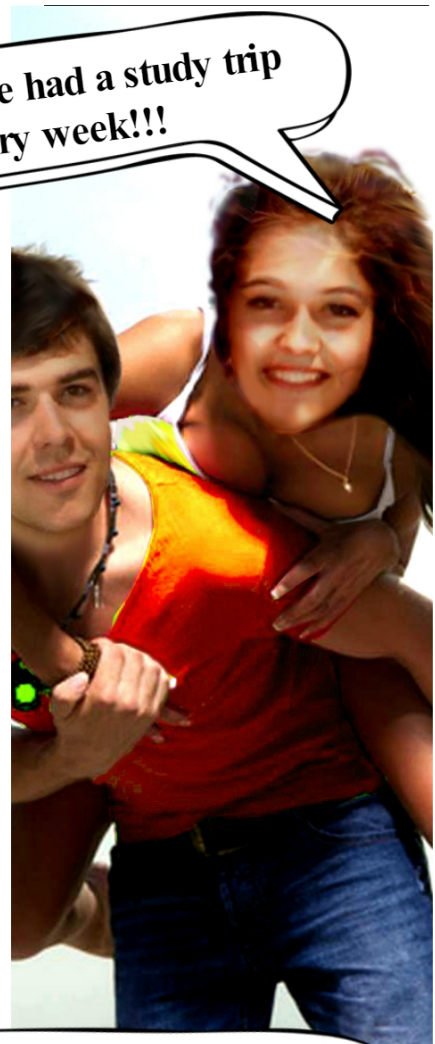

I wished we had a study trip every week!!!

Oh, baby, I want to spent every moment of the rest of my life with you!

Please promise me you won't ask me yet to have sex !

Every Day, life together became more beautiful. With the end of the year rapidly approaching, we became always more euphoric.
